157 m² office in a representative building from the year 1900, located just behind the Congress of Deputies. A historic space, having been the former residence of the writer Azorín, now converted into an exclusive and stately enclave for professional use. A very pleasant space of great distinction, with excellent natural lighting thanks to its balconies overlooking Zorrilla Street. It stands out for its magnificent high ceilings and its original pitch pine floors. It features an ideal layout for offices or a corporate headquarters. The building offers a concierge service. It is notable for its magnificent location, just a few meters from Paseo del Prado and Castellana. The surrounding area offers all kinds of services, shops, and a select range of dining options. Fantastic communication by both public and private transport. Just a few minutes' walk from the Sevilla (Line 2) and Banco de España metro stations, as well as the Recoletos commuter train (cercanías) station. Additionally, it offers quick and convenient access to the capital's main arteries. Can you imagine working here?
